Council owned buildings leased to other organisations where the responsibility for access lies with the lessee

Falkirk Council has an annual prioritised programme for adapting its buildings in order to facilitate access for disabled people to allow use of our services.

In March 2009 Falkirk Council had 128 buildings from which it provided a service to the public under this definition. 94 of these comprising 73.4%, were suitable for and accessible to disabled people in all public areas. For reasons of clarity the list below has some separate entries for Services based in a single building or combines more than one building at a site. It does not therefore show all the 128 service buildings individually.

The assessments do not cover the suitability of access to the buildings for disabled staff.

That a building is considered "suitable for and accessible to disabled people" means that practices, policies or procedures make it possible and reasonably practical for disabled people to use a service and that auxiliary aids or services are provided which would enable or make it easier for disabled people to use a service there". Unless specifically exempted, it always includes a provision for wheelchair users.

Access from the public road or car park area to the building entrance and egress from the building must both be sufficient for the needs of disabled people.

Where toilet facilities are provided, facilities for disabled people will normally be required.

Buildings judged suitable have been subjected to an accessibility audit or an equivalent assessment covering all aspects of the needs of the disabled person.
